

The thing is, living a simple life is about living life. And until life is over, we keep on living and changing and growing right along with it. We don't suddenly come to a point and say, "This is it! I've made it!" Because just as soon as the words are out, something will change!

So embrace the beauty of the season you're in. Dig deep into God's Word. Follow hard after him. Do what he's called you to do. Know that he loves you. And when the season changes, walk forward, taking what you've learned and applying it to what's next.

"He has made everything beautiful in its time." Ecclesiastes 3:11

Z: Z is not really the end

“So here we are, simplifying again.”

I’ve said many times that there are no “10 Easy Steps” to a simple life. No “A Simple Life Overnight” kinds of promises. No “One Size Fits All” simple life.

Because our lives are different and they are constantly changing. Days, months, years, and seasons come and go. And with each one, there’s an opportunity to evaluate, to ask ourselves, Is this still working?

Most often, the principles remain the same, but with new days and seasons, the particulars change. We try something new and if it works, we incorporate it into our routine. If not, we move on and try something else.
